the Administration toward San Francisco Affairs.

been no change to day in the at Washington authorities concerning of affairs at San Francisco It remains simply one of watchfulness and preparation to respond to a call of the governor for assistance to preserve the peace in case he reports that the state forces are inadequate for that purpose

The efforts assiduously made by certain parties to convince the administration that the board of health's condemnation of Chinatown is merely a pretext for a forcible expulsion of the Chinese from the city and that therefore the federal government in view of the guarantees of the Burlingame treaty ought to interfere to prevent its execution have failed to produce the desired result and there is no reason to believe that the personal representations of a delegation from the Chinese six companies who are rumored to be on their way to Washington will be any more effectual On the contrary there is good reason to believe that the six companies are by no means in favor here even with the Chinese legation

It is felt that these six companies with their immense revenue derived from the mass of their countrymen in California might themselves long ago have averted the board of health's order by devoting some of their money to the sanitary improvement of Chinatown and as an illustration of their cold blooded parsimony it is known in Washington that the Chinese not long ago were informed that the six companies positively refused to contribute a few hundred dollars out of their revenue of perhaps one million a year to defend a Chinaman on trial for his life and that the requisite amount was sent to California from Washington by members of the Chinese legation as an act of charity and humanity

The Sugar and Paper Tariff Questions

In the ways and means committee to day the subject of the new sugar tariff was referred to a sub committee, a majority of whom are known to be in favor of some reductions of duties on sugar It is understood that an advalorem of 51 per cent in all different grades of sugar meets with considerable favor although it probably will be opposed by refiners

There is a large gathering of manufacturers in Washington to-day and several consultations have been held with reference to the proposed reduction of duty on paper The committee on ways and means has decided to hear arguments for and against reduction on Friday next Manufacturers who are here represent the largest institutions in the country, and practically control the trade They are much alarmed at the prospect Every weekly newspaper in the country, with but few exceptions, has appealed to its representative in congress to reduce the duty under the supposition that such action would reduce the price of paper, and hundreds of petitions have been received here to the same effect The country press has a powerful influence upon congressional opinion

Decision in a Monterey Land Case.

The acting commissioner general of the land office to-day rendered a decision excluding tract No 3 from the survey of the city lands of Monterey, Cal The case was considered upon the application of the Pacific coast steamship company who purchased the tract from the city of Monterey, and placed valuable improvements thereon By a survey of the mouth of the river, Salinas was fixed as the northern boundary of the city A question arose as to the exact location of the mouth of the river, owing to a bank known as "tract No 3," which had been formed by deposits of sand. The acting commissioner decides that this tract is not included in the city lands, but is the property of the United States He has ordered that no entry or disposition of said tract be allowed until the right of the steamship company to purchase the same under the act of 1863 shall be determined

For and Against.

Two delegations appeared before the senate committee on commerce and presented an argument for and against the enactment of legislation to authorize the construction of a railroad bridge across the Detroit river at Detroit.

The President Approves of the Terms of the Ute Settlement.

The president sent to the senate to-day a message transmitting a report from the secretary of the interior containing an agreement signed by chiefs and head men of the Ute Indians now in Washington The stipulations of the agreement appear to the president so reasonable and just, and the objects to be accomplished by its execution so eminently desirable to both whites and Indians that it has his cordial approval, and he earnestly recommends it to congress for favorable consideration and appropriate action

TAKING LANDS.

A Bill to Aid Settlers to Choke off Jumpers and Speculators.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN]

WASHINGTON March 10—The bill passed by the senate yesterday for the relief of homestead settlers is a measure of great importance to very large numbers of settlers in California It was originally introduced by Senator Booth, and his persistent efforts procured its passage, both in the public land committee and in the senate Under the existing law the right of pre-emption on public land attaches from the date of settlement, but the right of a settler under the homestead law only from the date of the entry This bill provides that the land shall be given to the first settler whether he claims it as a pre-empter or as a homesteader Senator Booth said on this point

There is no reason why the right of homestead settlers should not relate back by his alleging the date of his settlement in his homestead affidavit and the fact that a settler now before the survey has no option but must claim under the pre emption law in order to cut under intervening settlers or grants. Many settlers have already used their pre-emption right and are now although in possession of valuable improvements, entirely at the mercy of intervening pre emptors or railroad grants.

The bill next provides that the first settler upon an abandoned homestead entry shall have a preference right to acquire a title to it after the original entry is canceled and the last section substitutes for the present round about and dilatory method of canceling relinquished homesteads and timber culture entries in the general land office the common sense provision that such relinquishments shall be effectual as soon as they are filed in the local land office Booth in explaining this section, said

The relinquishments are nearly always made as the result of purchase of the improvements by some person who is looking for a homestead and if the cancellation were immediately noted he by reason of his being a party in the matter would be able to enter before any one else but as long as cancellations in such cases are made as at present he has no advantage by reason of such purchase for in the interval it becomes widely known in the neighborhood and at the land office that the claim to that tract has been relinquished and all the jumpers and speculators of both localities are immediately on the alert to ascertain in advance of every one else the manner of the cancellation This desire is no small source of corruption in the land offices, and reporting cancellations by telegraph which goes by mail forms a considerable part of the business of some land attorneys

Proposed Change of the Election Laws Relative to Supervisors and Marshals

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN

WASHINGTON March 10—The house committee on judiciary agreed to report favorably Thompson s bill to regulate the number and pay of U S supervisors of election and special deputy marshals appointed under sections 201 and 2021 of the revised statutes The bill was amended by the committee by the addition of a section relating to arrests on election days, and provides that no [illegible] precinct or the marshal of the department in which such [illegible] own first supervisors appointed by [illegible] the revised statutes and deputy marshals shall not receive more than [illegible] dollars and a half per day for their services Marshals shall not serve more than three days and supervisors not more than six days for which they receive pay that no other fees shall be charged [illegible] the United States nor shall any other fees be paid them

It [illegible] that no fees shall be paid [illegible] in pursuance of express appropriation by congress for that purpose that it shall not be lawful for any deputy marshal or supervisor of election or any person acting by their authority to arrest or imprison on election day any election officer as [illegible] under and by virtue of election or appointment under any state law for any offense against the election laws of the United States or state but warrant or process for such offense may be executed by them at the close of such election day

THE ISTHMUS

DE LESSEPS BEFORE THE CANAL COMMITTEE

He Expresses Satisfaction at the President's Message—His Plans Explained

Capt Eads Argues in Favor of his Ship Railroad Scheme.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN

WASHINGTON March 9—DeLesseps who from the gallery heard the canal message cannot speak or understand English so he could not know what was being read except a Mr Nathan Appleton of Boston explained it to him but when he learned the purport of the message he took it very philosophically and merely explained to those who approached him that the people of the United States need have no fears, as neither he nor his nation would attempt to rob them of any commercial rights or privileges and said that he had told the president that he would be glad to receive the recognition of this government for his enterprise He would like to organize his company under the laws of the United States and receive the patronage of the government He was sure there would be no cause for alarm or official action on the part of this government when he made himself fully understood

The committee on the inter oceanic canal also presented their declaration in favor of the Monroe doctrine to the house while De Lesseps was in the gallery so he had the attitude of this government in both in its executive and legislative branches made very plain to him to day This morning DeLesseps spent a couple of hours with the house committee on the inter oceanic canal

DeLesseps closed his statement this morning before the house committee and he and Bionne of the French navy replied to various inquiries on the part of members of the committee in regard to the region of calms in the neighborhood of the bay of Panama These calms, Bionne suggested as a solution of that difficulty that the American commercial marine would be changed by the inter oceanic canal from sailing vessels to steam vessels just as had been the effect of the Suez canal in the English commercial navy. He also suggested that sailing vessels might be provided with some auxiliary steam machinery Three or four miles from the coast line there was no interference as to the region of calm The ocean opposite Nicaragua and Tehauntepec was as subject to calms as the region opposite Panama

DeLesseps recounted the various surveys made of the isthmus and expressed his conviction that it was useless to have any more such surveys The question was whether commerce wanted a long canal with obstacles or a short canal without obstacles

A vote of thanks was passed to Lesseps for his polite attendance and for the information which he had given

In acknowledging this courtesy, Lesseps said that while he was not present to talk politics but to give scientific views about the canal, he could not refrain from expressing his delight with the president s message of yesterday on the subject of the canal because it would certainly be advantageous to have the protection of the United States during the work and after the opening of the canal He had just sent a message to his son at Paris saying that the president's message assured the safety of the canal

Opposition to the Inter-Oceanic Canal Resolution.

A prominent member of congress to day expressed the opinion that a good deal of opposition will be manifested in the house against the inter oceanic canal committee s joint resolution which reaffirms the Monroe doctrine so vigorously In reply to a question as to by whom this opposition be made he replied "By men of sense. The resolution of the committee is a declaration of war We are in no position to have a war with a foreign power Such a war would be on water and we have no money and have not a ship which is safe to send to sea with an armament and a crew We haven't a gun in our navy, except on the monitors which are not seaworthy that will pierce an inch iron plate" The general belief is however that the resolution will be adopted by an overwhelming majority

Eads' Ship Railway Plan

Capt Eads read a paper before the committee in advocacy of his plan of a ship railway He claimed that a substantial and durable ship railway can be built for half the amount of a canal with locks and for one fourth that of a canal at the tide level that such a ship railway can be built in one third or fourth of the time needed for the construction of a canal that when built ships of maximum tonnage can be moved with safety at four or five times greater speed than in the canal that a greater number of vessels per day can be transported by railway than can possibly be transported by canal that the capacity of a ship railway can be easily increased to meet the demands of commerce that the cost of the maintenance of a roadway and rolling stock would be much less than that of a canal and that a railway can be constructed and operated in localities where it is not practicable to construct a canal

INDIAN MATTERS.

Memorial against Projected Measures from the Nations of the Indian Territory

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN]

WASHINGTON, March 10—Debate in the senate on the question of the memorial from representatives of the five nations of the Indian territory to the judiciary committee protesting against the bill to establish a U S court in that territory and to divide the land in severalty was quite sharp Advocates of this bill which is regarded as the entering wedge to opening the territory to settlement stoutly contended that the memorial should go to the committee on territories while opponents of the scheme as vigorously urged reference to the judiciary committee in view of allegations that the territorial committee is hostile to the Indians and are supposed to favor the prospects of the railroad company's action Senate vote on this question is looked for with deep interest Indications are that the memorial will be sent to the judiciary committee by an emphatic majority and also that this action may fairly be construed as a vote [illegible] the bill above referred to A vote will probably be reached to morrow

The house committee on Indian affairs agreed to day to report favorably to the house the bill authorizing the secretary of war to set aside any vacant posts or barracks not required for military occupation for the use and establishment of normal and industrial training schools for Indians from nomadic tribes having educational treaty claims upon the United States

Chairman Scales called the attention of the committee to the reported starving condition of certain tribes in New Mexico and was instructed to prepare a bill authorizing the secretary [illegible] to then

[illegible] memorial [illegible] from the secretary of [illegible] Edward [illegible] paymaster [illegible] Bills were introduced [illegible] giving [illegible] nominat[illegible] in Indian [illegible] custom [illegible] in Washington

Blaine submitted the following resolution

WHEREAS It has been [illegible] Pacific Mail [illegible] road companies [illegible] terms of which [illegible] the Pacific Mail [illegible] in consideration [illegible] permitted from the railway companies [illegible] sale as may be [illegible] by the railway companies [illegible] and to collect [illegible] from the commerce [illegible]

WHEREAS The said contract [illegible] is prejudicial to public interest and contrary to the public policy the controlling congress in chartering the Union Pacific railroad company and in granting to both railway companies large subsidies in money and lands therefore

Resolved That the committee on judiciary be instructed to investigate and report whether such contract has been made and what legislation is necessary to prevent the execution of the same and to protect public interest and such committee may report a bill to carry its recommendations into effect

The words "and there is reason to believe" were stricken out on motion of Thurman and the resolution was agreed to

The calendar was taken up

Senate

WASHINGTON March 10

The vice president presented the president's message transmitting the agreement between the secretary of the interior and the Utes and recommending ratification referred

Thurman reported adversely a bill reimbursing the states for interest on war loans etc

Bayard from the judiciary committee reported favorably on the house bill defining the terms of the office of chief supervisors of election

The senate took up the Porter bill and McDonald spoke He said that the president had told congress that he had no power to appoint Porter and that there was no colonelcy vacant and he therefore rightfully referred the matter to congress which has unlimited power over the army and navy It does not possess the pardoning power but it possesses power to obliterate the law imposing disability He read decisions to show that a court martial verdict could be reviewed The court was composed of men likely to be interested in the case Ricketts and King were commanders in McDowell s division Pope was the chief accuser and witness. McDonald favorably commented on the report of the board of review and referred to the testimony of the confederate generals in behalf of Porter He will conclude to morrow

Vest opposed Thurman s motion to refer to the judiciary committee a remonstrance of Indian chiefs against the establishment of a U S court in the Indian Territory He with Garland thought it discourteous to the committee on territories to so refer

Edmunds favored reference

Regan asked and obtained leave to have printed the following resolution which he would offer as a substitute for the resolutions from the committee on interoceanic canal

Resolved That while we recognize the general interest of the whole commercial world in a ship canal or railroad across the isthmus connecting North and South America and while we will respect that interest if such line of interoceanic communication shall be established we declare that as the establishment of such line of communication would practically connect the Atlantic and Mexican gulf and Pacific coast lines of the United States, and as the United States would have great local as well as general interest in the work In common with other commercial powers of the earth and as the political control of such a line of communication would be vitally necessary to her commercial interests and to the preservation of her territorial integrity and political independence she will insist whenever and by whomsoever such project shall be commenced, on such political control of it as will give security to our commercial and political interests

House

The bill to establish a department of agriculture was referred to the committee of the whole.

Scales from the Indian committee reported a bill authorizing the president to prescribe suitable police regulations for Indian reservations and the punishment of arson murder rape and burglary on Indian reservations placed on calendar

A considerable number of bills were reported from the same committee for various local purposes

Whitthorne from the naval committee reported a bill authorizing the equipping of an arctic expedition referred to committee of the whole.

Hazelton moved to consider the calendar being the political assessment bill agreed to—116 to 101 He will call the previous question at 4 P M. to morrow

Whitthorne from the committee on naval affairs reported a joint resolution for the organization of a board of officers of the navy to report upon the practicability of completing the double turreted monitors Puritan Monadnock Amphitrite and Terror Agreed to

Bills were placed on the house calendar appropriating $3 000 000 for the relief of the poor of Ireland to restrict Chinese immigration, and to prevent the removal of Indians from the states into the Indian Territory

Consideration was resumed of the political assessment bill and the house was addressed by Young, of Ohio

House advocated the bill He referred to the reckless and unbridled extravagance and corruption of the republican party when flushed with conquests. By overwhelming majorities in both houses the people had spoken and called the democracy to the front in no uncertain voice He ridiculed the civil service reform policy of the president and Secretary Sherman He declared that Tilden had been elected president but fraud had defeated the voice of the people The bill under consideration would remedy every evil and eradicate the terrible abuse

Richardson opposed the bill as robbery of political faith not in harmony with the majority of the house

Hayes opposed the bill as a high handed outrage and a gross infringement upon the rights of citizenship

Butterworth offered a substitute providing that no person in the employ of the United States having clerks under his control should levy a political assessment except it were voluntary preventing members of congress and other persons from paying any money for corrupt purposes or to influence an election for congress and declaring threats or menace for 30 days prior to election for the purpose of preventing voting a misdemeanor He thought that congress had better prevent illegal and violent proceedings in regard to elections than to deprive citizens of their constitutional rights The question here present was not new His substitute would end a policy which had wiped out the republican party in blood from half the republic The democratic party never fought a political fight except in the interests of slavery and against freedom The house had yesterday assailed the president and talked about fraud He might as well go out and fire poisoned arrows in the sun in the hope of preventing its pure light as attempt to fix the president of the United States His record had been and was pure If to blame for anything it was for his overweening confidence in men who subsequently denounced him because he refused to let the house strike down his constitutional prerogatives.

Hostetter demanded the previous question pending which the house took a recess

An evening session was for consideration of the pension bill

BEACONSFIELD'S LETTER.

KEY-NOTE OF THE CONSERVATIVE CAMPAIGN.

Which is Opposition to Home Rule and Maintenance of English Influence in Foreign Affairs

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN]

LONDON March 10—Following is the text of Lord Beaconsfield s letter to the Duke of Marlborough

DOWNING STREET March 8 1880

MY LORD DUKE The measures respecting the state of Ireland which her majesty's government have so anxiously considered with your excellency and in which they were much aided by your advice and authority are now about to be submitted for royal assent and it is at length in the power of her majesty s ministers to advise the queen to recur to the sense of her people. The arts of agitators which represented England instead of being a generous and sympathizing friend as indifferent to the danger and suffering of Ireland have been defeated by measures at once liberal and prudent which parliament almost unanimously sanctioned During six years of the present administration the improvement of Ireland and the content of our fellow countrymen of that island have much occupied the care of the ministry and they may remember with satisfaction that in this period they have solved one of the most difficult problems connected with its government and the people by establishing a system of public education open to all classes and all creeds Nevertheless a danger in its ultimate results scarcely less disastrous than pestilence and famine and which now engages your excellency s anxious attention distracts that country A portion of its population is attempting to sever the constitutional tie which unites it to Great Britain in that bond which has favored the power and prosperity of both It is to be hoped that all men of light and leading will resist this destructive doctrine

The strength of this nation depends on the unity of feeling which should pervade the United Kingdom and its widespread dependencies. The first duty of the English minister should be to consolidate co operation which renders irresistible a community educated as our own in an equal love of liberty and law and yet there are some who challenge the expediency of the imperial character of this realm Having attempted and failed to enfeeble colonies by their policy of decomposition they may perhaps now recognize in the disintegration of the United Kingdom a mode which will not only accomplish but precipitate their purpose The immediate dissolution of parliament will afford an opportunity to the nation to decide upon the course which will immediately influence its future fortunes and shape its destiny Rarely in this country has there been an occasion more critical The power of England and the peace of Europe will largely depend on the verdict of the country Her majesty s present ministers have hitherto been enabled to secure that peace so necessary to the welfare of all civilized countries and so peculiarly of interest to our own But this ineffable blessing cannot be obtained by the passive principle of non interference Peace rests on the presence not to say the ascendency of England in the councils of Europe Then, at this moment the doubt supposed to be inseparable from a popular election if it does not diminish certainly arrests her influence and is the main reason for not delaying an appeal to the national voice Whatever may be the consequence to her majesty s present advisers may it return to Westminster a parliament not unworthy of the power of England and resolve to maintain it I have the honor to be my lord duke your faithful servant BEACONSFIELD

Counter Manifesto by Liberal and Home Rule Leaders

LONDON March 10—Wm E Foster liberal leader has issued an address to the electors of Bradford He declares that the political opponents of Beaconsfield seek to disintegrate the United Kingdom and intimates that the charge is made in the hope of diverting attention from the mischievous foreign and Indian policy of the government

Shaw home ruler in an address to his Cork constituency characterizes the letter of Beaconsfield as an electioneering manifesto placing false issues before the people and tending to excite the worst passions of the ignorant He attributes to the government culpable ignorance and neglect He calls on the Irish people north and south to answer the insulting missive of the prime minister by returning an overwhelming majority pledged to the settlement of the great national land question and [illegible] for the creation of peasant proprietary laws whenever possible and therefore define and legalize [illegible] and extend it to the whole of Ireland

THE ELECTION LAWS AFFIRMED

A CONCLUSIVE DECISION BY THE SUPREME COURT

National Authority Paramount to that of the States—The Law Providing for Appointment of Supervisors and Deputy Marshals Sustained

STATE SOVEREIGNTY DENIED AND REJECTED

WASHINGTON March 10—The supreme court has rendered a decision in the case of judges appointed by the state at the congressional election in Baltimore on a charge of interfering with and resisting supervisors of election and deputy marshals They were convicted of this offense and appealed on the ground that the statutes under which they were tried were unconstitutional The decision of the court was announced by Justice Bradley

After the judgment of the court in the pa[illegible] cases announced last Monday it was generally concluded that the court in this case would uphold the constitutionality of the election laws of congress but it was still thought by some democrats that the court might not take a position so radical in all phases as that assumed by the congress which passed the laws in question But all such hopes as this were doomed to disappointment The court planted itself on ground quite as radical as that assumed by Senator Morton and other republicans in either house of congress when the bills were passed in claiming the extent of enlarged powers of that body under the recent constitutional amendments The court holds as follows

First—That the question of constitutionality justifies a writ of habeas corpus to inquire into the legality of conviction and if the laws are unconstitutional the prisoners should be discharged

Second—Congress had constitutional power to adopt those revised statutes which appoint supervisors of election and require that they be respected and not interfered with in the exercise of their functions and making such interference or resistance a penal offense The revised statutes referred to are the enforcement act of May 31 1870

Third—Circuit courts may convict for violation of these statutes and this court cannot relieve on habeas corpus

Fourth—Congress need not assume exclusive control of congressional elections The states are constitutionally empowered to fix times places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives subject to alteration by congress except as to place of choosing senators Congress has supervising power over the subject and may alter or modify or add to state regulations.

Fifth—Congress may impose new duties on officers of election, provide for attendance of officers to prevent frauds, and see that elections are fairly and legally conducted

Sixth—Such supervision can cause no collision because the authority of congress is paramount and its regulations necessarily supersede those of a state

Seventh—State and national sovereignties do not preclude co operation of both in elections the national authority being paramount Only jealousy can cause collision

Eighth—Congress has constitutional power to vest in a circuit court the appointment of supervisors of election

Ninth—The provision authorizing deputy marshals to keep peace at elections is constitutional the national government has a right to use force to compel obedience to its laws and execute its constitutional powers

Tenth—Concurrent jurisdiction of the government which it has in every part of the United States is distinct from executive jurisdiction in the district of Columbia

Eleventh—Provisions compelling the observance of state laws in the election of representatives are within the supervision of congress A violation of those laws is an offense against the United States which the national government may inhibit and punish

THE EXODUS INVESTIGATION

Testimony of John C. New, Chairman of the Indiana Republican Committee

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN]

WASHINGTON, March 10—The senate exodus committee to day began examination of witnesses summoned by republican members, and for several sessions to come the testimony will be of a different character from that given by witnesses called at the instance of Voorhees

John C New chairman of the republican committee of Indiana, and Col Dudley, also a member of the committee were examined to day They testified in substance that the movement of the negroes to Indiana from North Carolina was not political, and that from a political standpoint the republican leaders in Indiana were opposed to their coming, because the opposition would charge the republican party with inspiring the movement No contributions had been made to keep up the exodus movement but after the negroes arrived charity was extended to them when needed. Not over fifty per cent were voters, and their presence would not change the vote of the state. At least 80 per cent had found good homes and there was plenty of room for more Col New said that the party had done all it could to discourage the exodus movement, but after the negroes came they would not be allowed to starve

George T Ruby (colored), editor of the New Orleans Observer testified to day He said that the exodus originated among plantation laborers and was the result of persecutions and the political mobs of 1871 and 1875 The idea spread rapidly through the state, particularly in the cotton belt where outrages had been most frequent Outrage in Louisiana in 1878 caused the New Orleans convention to consider the means of going out of the hell in which they lived There was in New Orleans a large and increasing class of white democrats who deplored the present condition of affairs, but these men are merchants and capitalists naturally timid and exert no influence over the political leaders who are a rabid minority who control the party Nearly 3000 negroes had gone from Louisiana to Kansas and discontent was generally increasing

COMPARISONS.

In business matters it is a rule that the more customers a man has the cheaper he can sell his goods, but in school matters this does not appear to hold. It might seem that two thousand pupils could be taught at a less sum per pupil than 300 or 400, but reports from the Portland, East Portland and Eugene City districts for the past year compare as follows: Disbursements in Portland district, $113,772; average attendance, 1751, or nearly $65 per pupil. East Portland, disbursements, $4004 10; average attendance 310, or $12 78 per pupil. Eugene City, disbursements, $6584 95; average attendance, 350; cost per pupil, $18 82.

It is true that the year has been one of exceptional expense, as compared with former years, in the Portland schools. As was stated in the report of the directors, the past year was a bad year financially. But then it must be added that the system has now been established on a scale which, with the growth to follow, must cause the exceptional expense of a year or two past to become the settled rule. The cost for each scholar is increasing at a rapid rate year by year, not taking into account the losses and disasters of which the directors speak. Allowing for the unusual expenses incurred in the Portland schools during the year past, the cost per pupil in this city will still be found much in excess of the cost in the two other places named. The East Portland schools we know have given excellent satisfaction to their patrons, and the superintendent of public instruction makes mention of the school at Eugene City as among the best in the state. Why then is it necessary to pay so much more per pupil in this city than in other places, where the number to be taught is so much less? From the standpoint of economy there might be found a very reasonable objection to the Portland system.

One capital mistake is in carrying on all grades with a view to the high school, when in fact only a small percentage of the pupils ever reach that school. This keeps an enormous machinery in motion, necessarily at great cost of motive power. It follows that the cost of the high school is by no means fully measured by the expense of its own apparatus. There must be added the far greater cost of conducting all the other schools as tributary to it. Thus the common schools are not maintained and conducted on their own account, but with a view of carrying pupils into the high school. The effort is largely wasted, because only a few get to the high school, or can get there. We have, in short inverted the true order of the school system by trying to build it broad and heavy at the top and to make it stand on its vertex. "It is hard," says Poor Richard, "to make an empty bag stand upright;" and this other has with our schools, if we expect to make it really successful, will be harder still.

Whatever tax is necessary to support public education as far as all can share in it, that tax, whether it be four, and a half, ten, or twenty mills a year, will be cheerfully paid; but an unceasing protest will go up against taxation to support schools for only a small number. It is not only not the duty of the public, but it is most unjust, to keep up schools for educating a special few at the public expense, on special lines. The duty of the state is to the whole body of its citizens; and education at the public expense should not go beyond the limits where the masses can share in it. Beyond that it becomes class education, founded on a selfish policy, and is moreover a piece of injustice to the mass of children who require education on a broad and common foundation. Besides it is a most unjust burden on the property both of the poor and the rich. The Oregonian is not yet done with this subject, nor are the people done with it. If we are to have special schools let them be schools to teach our boys to be tailors and blacksmiths, or better still, to be farmers, and our girls to be fit for the duties of home and of motherhood. A crying need is instruction in the sober virtues of earnestness, sincerity and self-dependence. A system which keeps young people in school till they are twenty, and then turns them out upon the world, has disqualified most of them for the hard struggles of life. There is labor, which to every one should be an unfailing resource; but such have never been taught it. Of course the fault is largely with parents as well as with schools; but the modern school system holds out a continual temptation to run into such a fault and constantly encourages it, more and more.

A PENDING OUTRAGE.

In the Donnelly-Washburne contest the democrats of the house of representatives have gone far enough to show how willing they are to do a most wrongful thing; and yet their hesitancy shows how much they are afraid to strike. Bad consequences followed the effort to steal the state of Maine. There is fear that retribution would follow this attempt upon Minnesota. It is not the deed that confounds them, but fear of the consequences. Hence, though they want to consummate the wrong, so as to be in a position to profit by it under the possible contingency with a view to which the plot has been prepared, yet they are constrained still to "let 'I dare not' wait upon 'I would.'" The object proposed is to get the vote of Minnesota in case any accident should throw the election into the house of representatives. The state now has one democratic and two republican representatives. But if Donnelly be seated in the place of Washburne, the numbers will be reversed, and the vote of the state, in the event of an election by the house, would be democratic, and it would make the election of a democratic president a certainty. It is with this view and purpose that the scheme has been worked up. It is a most iniquitous partisan plot, fit parallel to the attempt to steal the state of Maine. That the democratic party is making these attempts so long in advance of the election is most ominous and presageful of the stupendous effort it will put forth to capture the presidency without regard to the foulness of the means it employs.

The plain facts of the Minnesota case are these: Mr. Washburne was elected to congress from the Minneapolis district by a majority on the face of the returns of 3012 votes, but on account of an error in the form of blank return papers, several precincts failed to make lawful returns of the vote for congressional candidates. These errors corrected, Washburne's majority was 2664. It is this great majority which the conspirators propose to overcome. The plan is to throw out 2272 numbered ballots for Washburne at Minneapolis; the whole vote in one county and four precincts in two others, amounting in all to 4633 votes. It is not pretended that these votes were not cast by lawfully qualified electors. The only charge is alleged errors of form on the part of receiving and returning officers. But the errors, even if such as alleged, could not invalidate the ballots. It is a sound rule that the people are not to be cheated out of their electoral rights by any non-observance of mere formality on the part of their servants in making the returns. If the returns come in a shape that enables the canvassers to understand what the people have intended, no want of formality can or should defeat the popular will.

The only reason why this plot has not already been consummated is the fear of its authors and abettors that it will awaken an indignation which will help to overwhelm their party. It is not prudence merely, for prudence takes counsel of moral aspects; it is rather a base reptile fear which stands in dread of retributive justice. It will yet be consummated if the partisan managers who conceived it can at last persuade themselves that they have better chance of gaining by it than of suffering injury and loss through record of the act.

THE ELECTION LAWS SUSTAINED.

It would not be easy to overestimate the importance of the decision of the supreme court on the national election laws, an outline of which is reported by telegraph to-day. It is a decision which knocks the bottom out of the theory of state sovereignty over national elections, and affirms most fully the principles on which the national election laws were established. It is, moreover, an additional affirmation of national authority against the state supremacy theory of politics and government, and it comes in good time, while the echoes of the struggle on this very question, which took place during the last session of congress, are still heard throughout the country. It is now settled that it is within the rightful power of congress to provide for supervision of election of its own members, and of consequence that provision may be made for appointment of supervisors and deputy marshals to administer and enforce the laws. Every point is fully covered by the decision, and every claim of those who have upheld these laws is fully sustained. The late extra session of congress was forced with a view to striking down these laws. The supporters of the state supremacy theory made a furious onslaught upon them, and the contest immediately assumed the form of a struggle between those who would strike down national authority and those who would uphold it. The extra session glided into the regular session, and still the struggle went on. Every effort was made by the confederate brigadiers and their northern allies to force into the government of the United States the confederate theory of government, or rather to force the confederate theory as the true interpretation of the nature of the government of the United States. This led to review of the grounds on which the great rebellion based its claims and the grounds on which it was resisted and crushed. The country was awakened. It saw again what the democratic party was, and what it intended. To force repeal of laws which it claimed were unconstitutional, appropriation bills were loaded with nullifying clauses, and an effort was boldly made to coerce the president into signing the bills, under the threat of suspending the government by withholding all means for its support, in case of his refusal. "We propose," exclaimed the brigadiers, "to wipe out the last vestige of your war legislation," and "he who dallies is a dastard, and he who doubts is damned." But the president resolutely vetoed the bills, and put his vetoes on grounds upon which a powerful appeal could be made to the country. Finding that the president could not be coerced, the most necessary appropriation bills were at length reluctantly passed, and the session adjourned. Then followed the elections of 1879, in which judgment was pronounced upon the conduct of the democratic party. In every northern state that party was beaten. It found that in raising these questions it had committed a blunder only less fatal than the rebellion itself. Now comes the decision of the supreme court upon the questions then at issue. It confirms the judgment rendered in the elections of last year. This is a nation, and not a confederacy or league of states. The democratic party would do well to take notice of the fact that the confederate theory, including the doctrine of state supremacy, for which it has always contended, is not to prevail. Perhaps it may learn yet that something has happened during the last twenty years.

THE UNITED STATES AND THE CANAL.

It is somewhat difficult to see on what grounds De Lesseps telegraphs that the recent message of the president of the United States on the isthmian question assures the safety of the canal. In that message the president states in the most direct and positive way that such canal must be under American control, and that the United States cannot consent to the surrender of this control to any European power or any combination of European powers. Hence it is both the right and duty of the United States to assert and maintain such supervision and authority over the canal as will effectually protect our national interests. That this doctrine will be fully maintained by the people of the United States there is no reason to doubt. Reasons of overwhelming force require it. If De Lesseps builds his canal he must build it under these conditions. No doubt this will assure the safety of the canal, but not under European control. Now the question is, will European capital undertake the construction of the canal under this state of things? Already the London Standard, one of the leading journals of England, has declared that the claim of the United States to preponderating influence in the canal will be resisted, if necessary. The chances are rather that De Lesseps will construct no canal under these unsettled conditions.

Parliamentary elections are shortly to be held in England. The plan of the Beaconsfield party for the canvass, as outlined in his letter to the Duke of Marlborough, is to represent to the country that peace at home and the influence and power of the nation abroad depend on the success of the present ministry and their continuation in office; and the liberal party will meet this by claiming that success of its own candidates and policy is necessary for the very same end. In England these things are done very much as with us. Each party, in its own judgment, monopolizes the wisdom and patriotism of the country, and the adherents of the opposite party are little better than public enemies.

"Oregon," says the Walla Walla Statesman, "may well feel proud of her representative in congress, John Whiteaker." We do, indeed. We are proud both of his intellect and achievements. His speech in favor of Eugene City as the most suitable place for the national democratic convention showed a powerful mind, while his trip across the continent, in which he made on canned provisions the shortest time ever made between the two oceans, was an unparalleled feat. Oregon is proud, indeed.

Married women, though tax-payers, were not allowed, it is said, to vote at the recent school meeting at Oregon City. The reason assigned, it is reported, was that according to scriptural doctrine, man and wife are one flesh, and one person cannot be allowed two votes. "Junius Brutus" might commend this mixture of scriptural doctrine and constitutional law to the supreme court of Oregon.

The Christian Advocate of this week speaks with some severity of those who have issued recent manifestoes in this city proposing to uphold public high schools by denouncing it as an infamous thing to decide Christian doctrines. Those who have made themselves the allies of the authors of this peculiar argument and similar ones, also receive some attention.

When [illegible] came up for hearing in state circuit [illegible] attorneys for the Association were [illegible] to have the question settled by the [illegible] court. Somehow we don't hear anything more about the proposed bridge across the Willamette.

The theme this (Thursday) evening at the Unitarian chapel is "The Worth and Dignity of the Human Soul."

The old tumble down building near the corner of Washington and First streets has been declared a nuisance.

The little fir tree which has stood so long on the vacant lot near the corner of Morrison and Fifth streets has yielded to the axe.

"Can a man's attention be riveted with copper rivets?" asks the Cincinnati Commercial. It can, if the rivets are sharpened and put where he will sit upon them.

I see him in the starlight's gleam.
His soft glance answers mine:
With melting look and tender beam
I see his blue eyes shine.
My garden wall I see him scale—
Still, heart! He will not fall,
I hear his voice—his tuneful wail;
The cat upon the wall.

FIRE ON THE TUG "EDITH."

Timely Rescue by the Steamer "Emma Hayward" from Total Destruction.

About three o'clock yesterday afternoon while the tug Edith, Capt. Archie Pease, was towing a raft of logs up the Columbia, and had nearly reached St. Helens, a fire was discovered in the wood stored around the boiler. The flames gained such headway that it was found necessary to cut loose from the raft, and Capt. Pease beached the tug just below St. Helens. The wood was packed so closely in the hull that it could not be thrown overboard. The Emma Hayward, with Capt Babbidge at the wheel, fortunately was seen coming up the river, and was signaled. She came quickly to the assistance of the tug, and her hose being attached to the fire pumps, the flames, after much difficulty, were extinguished. Several holes were cut in the deck of the tug before the fire could be effectively reached. But for the timely assistance of the Hayward, the tug must have been totally destroyed. The damage is about $500. The wood is supposed to have caught fire from the furnace, or being packed too closely about the boiler. A small steamer was sent from St. Helens to secure the loose raft.

AMUSEMENTS.

NEW MARKET THEATER.—Those who have not attended the New Market theater this week have lost one of the grandest spectacular treats that ever has been presented on the local stage, in the beautiful and wonderful prismatic fountain. It is worth the price of admission. To-night a very strong bill is presented in "East Lynne," with Mr. Chaplin as "Francis Levison," and Miss Annie Adams as "Lady Isabel" and "Madame Vine," Little Maud as "Willie" and a strong cast. To-morrow night Mr. Chaplin appears as Richelieu, a character in which he is said to excel Lawrence Barrett, inasmuch as Mr. Chaplin's idea of the character is moulded on that of the late Edwin Forrest. This bill, with the Prismatic Fountain, independent of the [illegible], should [illegible] the house. Seats can be reserved at Blumauer's drug store.

ON THE SANDS.

The British Bark "Dilharree" in Crossing out to Sea Yesterday with two Tugs, Takes a Sheer and Goes Ashore on Sand Island—Three Tugs Dispatched to her Rescue.

THE CARGO FULLY INSURED.

The following dispatches were received about dark last night by the Merchants' Exchange:

ASTORIA, March 10 4:06 P. M.

Dilharree, in attempting to cross out, struck on Sand Island. Think she will break up.

4:20 P. M.—Tug with men going to the Dilharree. She will heave cargo overboard.

The news spread rapidly, and created no little excitement among all river men and shippers. The following telegram from THE OREGONIAN'S correspondent gives the latest particulars obtainable:

ASTORIA, March 10, 7:20 P. M.

The British bark Dilharree, while crossing out the north channel in the tow of two tugs, went ashore near Swash channel, at the lower end of Sand Island, about noon to-day. The vessel took a sheer and the tugs could not hold her. Three tugs are now going down to tow her off. If possible at high water—12 o'clock to-night. If unsuccessful the cargo will be jettisoned to-morrow. She lies easy, and if the wind and weather hold good to-night she may come off, but her position is a very dangerous one. McCabe, stevedore, has gone down to jettison if necessary. Will dispatch again as soon as the tug returns.

A later telegram says: "There is not the least probability of hearing from the vessel until 2 to 2:30 A. M."

The Dilharree, Moore master, is an iron framed, planked, copper fastened bark of 1293 tons register. She was built in February, 1865, by Fletcher of London, and is rated A 1. Her dimensions are: length, 227 feet 7 in; breadth, 34 feet; depth of hold, 22 feet 7 in. She is valued at $50,000, is owned by J. Lidgett & Sons, London, and is probably insured.

Her cargo consists of 2031 tons of Oregon and Walla Walla wheat, loaded by Gibson, Church & Co., and sold by them through J. M. Ten Bosch, to a London firm, who of course are present owners. The cargo is insured for $15,975 in the British and Foreign Marine Insurance Company.

The Dilharree was in this port in 1875 and sailed for the United Kingdom with a cargo of wheat on account of the Salem Flouring Mills Co., Oct. 6 of that year.

REGULATIONS OF THE EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

STATE OF OREGON, EXECUTIVE OFFICE,
Salem, March 1, 1880.

The following regulations of the executive department, are hereby published for general information.

REQUISITIONS.

An application to the governor of this state for a requisition upon the governor of another state, or of a territory, for the rendition of an alleged fugitive, must, if the persons whose rendition is sought has been indicted, be accompanied by the following documents in duplicate:

1. A duly attested copy of the indictment, made by the clerk of the court having jurisdiction to try the party charged.

2. An affidavit, or affidavits, that the party charged is a fugitive from justice and that the demand is made in good faith, for the punishment of crime, and not for the purpose of collecting a debt, or of removing the alleged fugitive to a foreign jurisdiction with a view there to serve him with civil process, or for any pecuniary or private end.

In case no indictment has been presented against the person whose rendition is sought, but the application is based upon an information or complaint made before an examining court or magistrate, such application must be accompanied by the following documents in duplicate:

1. A duly attested copy of the information or complaint made by the examining magistrate.

2. An affidavit or affidavits as specified in paragraph 2, above.

3. An affidavit or affidavits to the facts constituting the offense charged by persons having actual knowledge thereof.

4. A certificate from the magistrate before whom the complaint was made, that in his opinion, the character of the complainant, and the merits of the case presented, warrant the application.

Each application must be accompanied also by a certificate of the district attorney of the district in which the offense is alleged to have been committed showing all the material circumstances, together with his opinion upon the expediency of allowing the application.

In all cases the greatest care will be exercised by this department, to ascertain beyond a doubt, that the object in seeking a requisition is not to collect a debt, or to afford some person an opportunity to travel at the public expense, or to answer some other private end.

In all cases of false pretense, embezzlement, conspiracy, and similar crimes, the strongest affirmative evidence will be required, that the real object is not the collection of a private debt.

If the offense is not of recent occurrence, [illegible]

Requisitions will not be granted upon two or more states at the same time, for the rendition of the same person.

In all cases of rejected applications, the papers will be retained in this department.

W. W. THAYER,
Governor of the State of Oregon.

DEATH OF MRS. JACKSON.

[COMMUNICATED.]

Mrs. Ursula Jackson, relict of Governor Hancock Lee Jackson of Missouri, who died in Salem about three years ago, passed from this life, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Woodson, in Amity, March 2, 1880, at the advanced age of 77 years and 3 months. Mrs. Jackson was a native of New York. Her maiden name was Oldham. She was married and removed to Missouri in 1821. Her husband early became absorbed in political life, leaving to her, largely, the care and responsibility of training a large family, consisting of ten children, raised to active and honorable life, and one early taken back to God who gave it. She came to this state with her husband in 1865, fixing their residence in Salem, where her husband died in March, 1877, after 55 years of happy married life. She was an honored member of the Baptist church, much loved by those most intimate with her, and honored by all who knew her.

She was brought to Salem for burial, and her funeral attended from the Baptist church by many of her other neighbors and acquaintances, many of whom testified their love by their tears as they viewed her remains. Another of life's travelers gone, who honored the position of wife, mother, neighbor and friend in both private and public life. The families of several of her children were permitted the sad consolation of being present at her funeral. Her death was peaceful, and she "rests," sweetly rests. J. C. B.

ASTORIA LETTER.

Near Approach of the Fishing Season—Lively Prospect—Large Run Anticipated.

[REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

ASTORIA, March 9, 1880.

With the gradually approaching commencement of the fishing season, business in our town is evidently reviving. Cannery men are receiving large supplies of tin, lead and other material used in the manufacturing of tin cans and in the preparation of the succulent fish they put in them. The sounds of busy labor are heard coming from the interior of the canneries where thousands of boxes are being nailed together to be ready to facilitate quick shipments of our staple commodity. Huge truck loads, labeled and ready for use are daily issuing from the extensive box factory of Geo. W. Hume, whose facilities for manufacturing them are so extensive and complete that he turns out thousands for others besides the immense quantity consumed at his own canneries as well as those of his brothers. It is safe to say that there will be at least one hundred more fishing boats this season unload their catch at the canneries below Tongue Point than last. Warren Bros. will do no canning at Manhattan this year; all their boats will be employed for their cannery here. The Woody island cannery of Mr. W. Jackson will not run this year, but will combine with the Hapthorn Co. or else the new cannery at Ilwaco. The Glen Ella boats have been purchased by Mr. S. D. Adair, who will run the Bradley cannery at upper town to its full capacity, which cannery did not run at all last year. Yet again the boats and canning material and implements which lay idle all last season in the Duncan and Hume cannery on Capt. Flavel's wharf, will all be brought into requisition, Geo. W. Hume having purchased and added the boats to his fleet, and the tools, benches and implements having been set up in the New West Shore Company's cannery on the roadway. We are warranted therefore in anticipating a real lively time, and we are prepared to give Mr. Salmon, our welcome visitor, when he arrives, a much warmer reception than we gave even to Gen. Grant.

Writing of warm receptions, reminds your correspondent of a raid made on THE DAILY OREGONIAN to-day. When the carriers received it from the hands of the mail agent such was the demand for it by the passengers of the steamship Oregon, at the distributors had hard work to get away with any. One bright little Italian boy, who distributes 25 copies in the suburbs, was fairly, or rather unfairly captured, and before he knew it all his papers were gone and he had a handful of dimes. They did not want to cheat the boy, but they must have THE OREGONIAN. The little fellow's patrons were, however, nearly all subsequently supplied through the kindness of several old subscribers, who, being aware of the little episode, kindly donated their papers after a hasty perusal, for the benefit of their neighbors, for which kindness the carrier, through your correspondent, desires to express his sincere thanks, and if any failed to receive their paper they are respectfully asked, under the circumstances, to pardon the omission.

CULTURE OF SUGAR BEETS.

Premiums Offered therefor by an Association of Citizens of Washington Territory.

Much interest is being taken in the effort to demonstrate the practicability of growing sugar beets with profit in the Puyallup valley. We print the following as an indication of the effort which is being made:

WHEREAS, The welfare of a community depends largely upon its material prosperity and its ability to produce the necessaries and luxuries of life; and

WHEREAS, The proceeds of the labor of the people of this territory are yearly subject to a heavy drain to pay for the large quantities of sugar annually imported from the wealthier countries of the world; and,

WHEREAS, The quality of the soil, the abundance of timber and coal, and the evenness of the climate seem to adapt our territory to the raising of sugar beets and the manufacturing of beet sugar; now, therefore

We, the undersigned, citizens of Washington territory, desiring to encourage the culture of beets, and the manufacture of sugar therefrom in this territory, and in this behalf to procure a thorough estimate of the cost of the production of beets, and a test of their sugar producing qualities, hereby agree to pay to George W. Kelly, E. R. Rogers, F. Meeker, John W. Ackerson, E. C. Meade, or either of them, the sums severally set opposite our names, to be by said above named committee, or a majority of them, expended in the manner following, to-wit:

First—In paying three premiums: A first premium to the person raising the best crop of beets; a second premium to the person raising the second best crop of beets, a third premium to the person raising the third best crop of beets, said premiums to be awarded by a committee of three or more disinterested persons, to be selected by the subscribers hereto, and subject to the following conditions: No crop of less than one acre shall be admitted in competition. No one shall compete for and receive any of the above mentioned premiums who shall not first have subscribed and paid at least five dollars ($5) to the said first above mentioned committee, and who shall not make an accurate report to the same of the cost of raising the beets offered in competition, and who shall not after the maturing of the beet crop, furnish without expense to the said committee, at least one bushel of beets of the average quality for the purpose of having them tested, and who shall not plant and raise said crop during the year 1880.

Second—In providing for an accurate test by competent persons of the sugar producing qualities of a portion of each crop.

Third—In publishing a report of the analyses and a tabulated statement of the cost of raising beets.

Said premiums are to be as large as the total sum raised on this subscription will justify. It is understood and agreed that the said committee and each of them named above in consideration of the benefit which will accrue to the territory from the development of the beet sugar industry, undertake to perform all the duties cast upon them by the agreement and in accordance with its provisions.

THE "BLUE PETER"—WHAT IS IT?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In a recent work by Justin McCarthy, called "A History of our own Times," there is a very interesting notice of Mrs. Mary Somerville, one of the most distinguished writers and scientific scholars of her day. Mrs. Somerville lived considerably past ninety, and retained her faculties with wonderful force and brilliancy to the close of her life. She writes thus cheerfully to a friend concerning her advanced years: "The blue peter has long been flying at my foremast, and now that I am in my ninety-second year I must soon expect the signal for sailing." This passage was recently quoted to a small circle of readers without any one being ready at once to explain what the "blue peter" was. A reference to that very useful book, "A Dictionary of Phrase and Fable," soon solved the question. We there read that the "blue peter" is a blue [illegible] hoisted as a signal that the ship is about to sail. Peter is a corruption of the French partir (leave or notice of departure), the flag being hoisted to give notice to the town that any person having a money claim may make it, before the ship starts, and that all about to sail are to come aboard." Mrs. Somerville's reference to the blue peter flying at her foremast, is very beautiful and touching, as indicating her readiness for the long voyage, with all her earthly claims discharged and all her treasures on board.

It would be interesting to some of your readers to know if the "blue peter" is more than a local custom, or if it is generally known among English seamen.

A GOOD THING

German Syrup is the special prescription of Dr. A. Boschee, a celebrated German Physician, and is acknowledged to be one of the most fortunate discoveries in medicine. It quickly cures Coughs, Colds and all Lung troubles of the severest nature, removing, as it does, the cause of the affection and leaving the parts in a strong and healthy condition. It is not an experimental medicine, but has stood the test of years giving satisfaction in every case, which its rapidly increasing sale every season confirms. Two million bottles sold annually. Beware of medicines of similar names, lately introduced. Boschee's German Syrup was introduced in the United States in 1868, and is now sold in every town and village in the civilized world. Three doses will relieve any ordinary cough. Price 75 cents. Sample bottle 10 cents.

Dyspepsia is a Hydraheaded Monster from which originate nearly all the ills that human flesh is heir to. The Peruvian Syrup, a protected solution of the protoxide of iron, is a long tried and well established remedy for this distressing complaint; it has cured thousands when other remedies have failed.

Funny Sayings.

The public is ofttimes led to read notices in the many newspapers of the marvellous cure some kind of patent medicine has effected, and some high sounding name is attached to a testimonial as a further guarantee. But judging from the many testimonials from well known persons here in our state to the effect that the OREGON KIDNEY TEA has no superior for the cure of kidney and bladder diseases, we feel easy in recommending this valuable discovery to our readers who may be afflicted with any trouble in these organs.

THURSDAY MORNING MARCH 11 1880

THE LOVER'S PERIL

Have I been ever wrecked at sea
And nigh to being drowned?
More threatening storms have compassed me
Than on the deep are found

What coral reefs her dangerous lips
My bark was nearly gone
Hope plunged away in dire eclipse
And black the night rolled on

What seas are like her whelming hair
That swept me o'er and o'er
I heard the waters of despair
Crash round the distant shore

"Come, Death" I murmured in my cries—
For signals none were waved—
When both lighthouses in her eyes
Shone forth and I was saved

THE CABINET LADIES

Madames Evarts Sherman, Ramsey, and Key, as they Appear at White House Receptions

[Washington Correspondence Philadelphia Times.]

A plain, dignified, matronly woman stood next to Mrs. Hayes A lace cap—Quaker like in its simplicity—rested on her snowy hair, a self-trimmed black silk dress (for Mrs Evarts has not wholly discarded mourning for a beloved son) made one of the simplest toilets to be found in the crowded throng. A whole head and shoulders above Mrs Evarts stood Mrs Secretary Sherman—one of those creations which can be compared to the lilies of the field in purity of style and stately grace—occupying the middle ground between blonde and brunette, her tawny hair with its natural wave gathered in the low Greek coil, without comb or ornament of any kind A simple black dress relieved at the throat with illusion ruching, she seemed the personified embodiment of one of Tennyson's poems:

"Tall and divinely fair

Not a beautiful woman, but one created with so much harmony that the whole mortal statue would have to be pulled apart to remedy the defect. Mrs Sherman would make a most admirable "first lady"—the very best of all the candidates now in the field—for in all the years of her husband's official life at the Capital, her unostentatious charity, her kindly deeds to the worthy and deserving has enshrined her as a patron saint in many a poor widow's heart

Imagine an English Duchess who has inherited the rare beauty which descends with hereditary rank Why are the English nobility the finest specimens of personal beauty? It is because its members leave nothing undone to perfect the physical proportions of the race. Of English origin Mrs Ramsey brings to the Cabinet any amount of that material which this administration lacked most. It has already been whispered by those who ought to know that Gov Ramsey was not called to the War Office because of his bloody record, but it was made necessary by the deficiency of the social cabinet, for while a large number of these society leaders were equal to hand shaking, they were not quite strong enough to prevent masculine yawns between the courses at official dinners. The coming of Mrs. Ramsey into the field, even at this late day, if it does not win the battle will at least prevent a complete rout. Mrs Ramsey's long residence at the Capital, her superior intelligence and winning ways is doing much to retard the criticism which ended with the retirement of her predecessor, for it is openly reported that Secretary McCrary was "hocus pocused into a "judge" because "Mrs Hayes could stand it no longer."

Next to Mrs. Ramsey stood Mrs. Postmaster-General Key, who, in the language of the first Napoleon, would be pronounced the greatest woman, as he told Madame De Stael "is she who has the largest number of children." And yet Mrs. Key is robbed of her laurels, for while she has only ten olive branches, Mrs. Evarts has eleven, or did have when the Hon. William M. Evarts became Secretary of State. Mrs. Key is large and substantial looking, without any particular beauty [illegible]. It is only youth and beauty that can wear theatrical costumes with becoming effect, but when a middle aged lady can be found to take the risk her courage should be applauded and her wounds [illegible] dressed. Just beyond Mrs. Key stood Miss Agatha Schurz, the eldest daughter of the Secretary of the Interior, rather more than pleasing in form and feature, but [illegible] destitute of that indescribable something which makes her father one of the historic characters of his time. The youthful [illegible] who stood by the side of Miss Schurz [illegible] have been the niece of Attorney General Devens, but as there is no proof on this [illegible] the subject is omitted.

Capital and Idle Labor.

[From the N. Y. Journal of Commerce.]

[illegible] in San Francisco are fast getting [illegible]. That is the only city in the United States whose papers are not chronicling an improvement in trade. The tone of the San Francisco journals is excessively dismal and desponding. In driving out the Chinese, Kearney and his mob have driven out prosperity. Their war upon capitalists is a war upon laborers also. The former can stand it. They can shake the dust of San Francisco from off their feet and move their money to places where it can be safely and profitably [illegible]. But the workingmen have no resource. They can not easily migrate with their families. They must stay in San Francisco till [illegible] to them; and they will be long [illegible] for it, we promise them, unless they [illegible] Kearney, Kalloch & Co. A comparison just published, between the San Francisco bank deposits of January 1, 1880, and [illegible] of the previous New Year's day tells [illegible] the matter During that time—a [illegible] of communistic agitation culminating in the adoption of the Sand Lots constitution [illegible] 1,000,000 were withdrawn from the commercial banks of that city and invested elsewhere. This withdrawal represents the degree of confidence felt by capital in the [illegible] of a state where it is possible for men like Kearney to dictate constitutions and rule [illegible]. The drainage of capital will not [illegible] continue as long as the existing cause [illegible] in force. The savings bank deposits [illegible] the same year fell off from 58 300 to [illegible] and the sums to their credit from $54,-[illegible] to $44,350,000 Dispatches from San Francisco report an increase of enforced idleness among workingmen and of distress in consequence. It is as if Providence was [illegible] condemning and punishing the sins of Kearneyism with the privations and sufferings which are their just and inevitable recompense.

THE SHERMAN DIAMONDS.

HOW THE DIFFICULTY OCCASIONED BY THE KHEDIVE'S GIFT WAS OVERCOME.

The Cincinnati Enquirer gives the following account of the disposition of the famous [illegible] presented to General Sherman's [illegible] daughter on the occasion of her marriage to Lieutenant Fitch

When it was received in this country the duties demanded amounted to $20,000, as the lowest estimate of its value was $200 000 The Lieutenant was unable to pay this sum, and an act was passed admitting the necklace free of duty. Lieutenant Fitch then found that the taxes in St. Louis would take the whole of his income, and he once more found the necklace an elephant on his hands. General Sherman then returned the necklace with thanks, to the donor In reply, the Khedive said that it was not his desire that the diamonds should be given to any member of his family, but as he had four daughters he desired that the diamonds should be [illegible] in sets and divided equally among them. These daughters are Mrs Fitch, nee Minnie Sherman, Ella Sherman [illegible] Sherman and Rachel Sherman The necklace was then returned to the Sherman family and mounted in four magnificent pendants, four pairs of splendid solitaire earrings and eight rings These four ladies are now the happy possessors of four complete suits of diamonds, the value of each suit being at least $25,000. This makes each of them rich in her own right, through the generosity of Egypt's ruler "

ARTICHOKES

OSWEGO March 6 1880

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

I will give you my limited experience in raising Brazilian artichokes as an article of food for hogs and stock of all kinds. My horses cattle sheep and hogs are remarkably fond of them There seems to be something peculiar about them that stock of all kinds like very much The red Brazilian artichoke is of late importation into the United States last year was the first time they were distributed by the agricultural department at Washington [illegible] The Jerusalem artichoke has been raised in some localities of Oregon for many years as an article of food [illegible] they do not compare with the red Brazilian I am well satisfied with [illegible] years experience that there is nothing that the farmer can raise that will give so large a yield and pay him so well in Oregon They [illegible] the place of corn owing to their great yield and the ease with which they can be cultivated in Oregon [illegible] feel they are very superior to corn for [illegible] rooting and feeding and [illegible] last for several years [illegible] and [illegible] the hogs take them all Enough seed should be left in the ground for seed the next season

Any land that will raise potatoes will grow red Brazilian artichokes they require about the same cultivation as potatoes if planted early the tops make good fodder They will yield the first year from 200 to 400 bushels per acre second year 400 to 800 third year 800 to 1 000 I sold six hogs taken from the patch to market

A correspondent of the Rural World says one acre of artichokes will keep twenty hogs from October till March Four bushels cut to single eye will plant an acre

There are no new features in the local market to-day Receipts of wheat are gradually decreasing though there is doubtless a very considerable surplus in the country but without a more active demand and an advance in prices the larger portion will be carried over to next harvest year The current rates here are given at $1 85 but some decline to pay so much, while occasionally chances are found to place a choice lot at an advance

Flour is in fair supply and rates steady

Oats in a little better demand but for common feed prices are unchanged the ruling rates for such being 40@42c per bushel

Potatoes continue to be a drug in the market and those who attempt to sell find themselves compelled to accept whatever is offered.

There are chances that eggs will drop to 16 cents again before the week is out.

NEW YORK FREIGHTS AND MARKETS

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN]

NEW YORK March 10 —There is no sign of improvement in the freight market via Cape Horn which is still very quiet and in fact dull In rates there is a show of steadiness still as a large lot of freight would be snapped up at less than current quotations by either of the lines No new charters to note

Steamer freights are not over 5 cents a pound. It is announced that all the contracts made by the Pacific Mail previous to selling out to the railroads will hold good until April 1st. This will enable the steamers this month to obtain fair cargoes. In connection with the purchase of the China lines of the P M Co by the Pacific roads it is proper to note that the English lines via Suez canal intend to make more active opposition to the route via San Francisco, and much depends upon the rates of freight made by the O and O company whether they will receive their share of the crop Receivers of tea in this city are disposed to favor the Suez route owing in a great measure to the superior condition of the teas when landed.

The market for leading staples remains quiet and there is less doing for manufactured articles

Breadstuffs—Unsettled
Flour—Dull and depressed 10@15c lower
Wheat—More active 1½c higher
Barley—Fair demand, steady
Provisions—Dull.
Teas—Very quiet.
Hides—Quiet and firm, although the supply is heavy.

LIVER PILLS,

Hepatitis or Liver Complaint

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure, sometimes the pain is in the left side, the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side, sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, the bowels in general are costive sometimes alternative with lax, the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part There is generally a considerable loss of memory accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done A slight dry cough is sometimes an attendant The patient complains of weariness and debility he is easily startled his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin, his spirits are low, and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it In fact he distrusts every remedy Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged

DR C MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine are productive of the most happy results No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL

For all bilious derangements and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

The genuine are never sugar coated

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS

The genuine MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C MCLANE and FLEMING BROS on the wrappers

Insist upon having the genuine DR C MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS prepared by Fleming Bros, of Pittsburgh, Pa the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation
